

REPORT GAIN FOR BRITISH AT STRAITS

TAKE 280 CARDS OF TURKISH TRENCHES IN NEW OFFENSIVE A DARDANELLES.

DISCUSS WITHDRAWAL

Question of Policy Is Debated In House of Lords.—Kitchener to Investigate the Situation.

London, Nov. 18.—The British army at the Dardanelles has resumed the offensive and captured 280 yards of Turkish trenches.

Baron Ribblesdale said in the house of lords today in addressing a quotation to the Marquis of Lansdowne, "that he understood Lieutenant General Charles C. Monro, commander of the British expedition at the Dardanelles, had reported in favor of withdrawal of the British army at the Dardanelles. The Marquis of Lansdowne announced the government asked Earl Kitchener to visit the eastern Mediterranean because in his opinion the report of Sir Charles Monro and evidence accompanying it, did not seem sufficient to enable the government to come to a conclusion upon the great questions of policy involved.

Another Raid on Verona.

Paris, Nov. 18.—A hostile aircraft flew over Verona, Italy this morning, several bombs being dropped from the machine, according to Havas dispatch from Rome. There were no casualties except one child slightly injured.

CHURCHILL LEAVES TO JOIN REGIMENT

Former Member of British Cabinet Starts Quietly for the Front.—Wife Bids Him Farewell.

London, Nov. 18.—Winston Spencer Churchill, former first lord of the admiralty and chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in the uniform of his regiment, left for the front this morning. His wife bade him farewell at the railroad station, where he passed unrecognized on the platform as he walked to enter a special car.

Mr. Churchill became widely known as a soldier before he began his political career. He entered the army in 1895, after graduating from Sandhurst. He served with the 4th Queen's Own Buffs, a regiment of the line, in the Sudan, and in the Boer war, where he was severely wounded. He was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in 1900, and to colonel in 1902. He was appointed commander of the 4th Queen's Own Buffs in 1903, and in 1905 he was promoted to major-general. He was appointed to the post of first lord of the admiralty in 1905, and in 1911 he was promoted to admiral. He was appointed to the post of first lord of the admiralty in 1911, and in 1915 he was promoted to admiral.

Paris City Council Passes Radical Measure for More Soldiers.—Applies to All Allies.

Paris, Nov. 18.—The Paris city council today adopted a measure that all subjects of allied nations of military age, who are residing in France, be required either to leave the country, or to enlist in the French army. Those who refuse to be conscripted into the French army will be deported.

LAKE FOREST DOG BANISHED TO FARM

Canine Which Snapped at Children and Was Saved from Death By Society Women Is Taken Away.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—"Binkie," the famous favorite of Lake Forest, exclusive social set, has left town in obedience to an order of Mayor Lewis. The dog, owned by Mrs. B. Grannis, was transferred to a farm in the suburbs. There "Binkie" will spend the remainder of his days in pursuit of such amusements as fall to the lot of farm dogs. "Binkie" first obtained newspaper publicity yesterday, when he had been taken to the city by Mayor Lewis on charges of snapping at children. His owner defended him and later society women of Lake Forest came to his rescue by testifying that he was a good character.

RAIL BROTHERHOODS DEMAND 8 HOUR DAY ON FIRST OF MARCH

Engineers, Conductors, Firemen and Brakemen Want Shorter Day.—Roads Must Reply in Thirty Days.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 18.—The four railroad brotherhoods, including more than 350,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen on all railroads in the United States, are preparing to make a formal demand about March 1 that the railroad grant them an eight hour day with the same pay they now get for ten hours. Action will be taken at a meeting of the executive committee of the brotherhood in Chicago December 15, when ballots for referendum will be taken. The votes are expected to be tabulated before March 1st.

The eastern associations of the general chairman of the engineers' first brotherhood in joint convention here last night decided to join the conductors' and trainmen's brotherhoods in the eight hour day and time and a half for overtime demands. Similar action is expected at a meeting of the southern associations of engineers and firemen at Washington next Monday, and of the western associations at Chicago December 10.

The committee chosen here at Washington and at Chicago will meet on December 15 Chicago meeting. Under the agreement the roads must answer the men within thirty days, which will bring the date when the answer will be received about April 1.

SAYS ENGLAND HELD DESERTER FROM EITEL

London Dispatch Reports Lieutenant in Custody of British Naval Authorities.

London, Nov. 18.—A German naval lieutenant from the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, who broke his parole at Newport, is now in the hands of British naval authorities, according to information gleaned here today.

Two officers of the German converted cruiser, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, Lieutenant Koch and Dr. Kroneck, disappeared from the vessel at Newport, Oct. 17. At the time the vessel was interned on April 7, the officers of the cruiser gave their parole to the United States government, agreeing not to leave American soil.

Captain Thierichens, commander of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, when he learned of the disappearance of the men from his vessel, expressed his regret to Rear Admiral Beatty, commandant of the Norfolk navy yards.

SEE A SURE VICTORY FOR DEFENSE PLANS

LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT WILSON'S PREPAREDNESS PROGRAM WILL CARRY.

STAND OF CONGRESS

Canvases Indicates an Overwhelming Sentiment Among Both Republicans and Democrats of Both Houses.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Wilson's "preparedness program," which will involve the expenditure of huge sums within the next five years in the rebuilding of the army and navy will be passed by congress, according to the men in the senate and house who are pushing the administration plan.

The program provides for the expenditure of $600,000,000 in the construction of ten dreadnaughts, six battle cruisers, ten scout cruisers, six destroyers, fifteen sea-going submarines, eighty-five coast defense submarines, four gunboats, one hospital ship, two fuel oil ships, two ammunition ships, one repair ship, and a $20,000,000 appropriation for reserve armament and $2,000,000 for aviation purposes.

Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, as chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, will have charge of the administration's naval defense program in the upper house. Congressman Lemuel P. Felt of Tennessee, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, will direct the administration's fight in the lower chamber for a bigger and better navy.

Secretary Garrison's plans provide for an expenditure of approximately $600,000,000 and for the enlargement of the military establishment by the recruitment of a great citizen army of 400,000 men, which will not include the state militia, numbering approximately 125,000 men.

A New York paper has undertaken to ascertain the sentiment of the senators and representatives in congress toward "preparedness" and especially in reference to the naval program outlined.

The replies received indicate that the president's measure will receive 84 per cent of the vote of the democratic senators and 75 per cent of the votes of the republicans, or 29 more than a majority.

On this basis the naval and army plans should receive 47 democratic votes, 29 republican and 1 progressive, a total of 77 votes. This does not include 13 per cent of the republican senators who, in their opinion, did not care to express themselves either in favor of or against the plan. The United States senate stands on "preparedness," as indicated by the poll, as follows:

	No. For	Ag't	Total
Democrats	56	26	82
Progressives	1	0	1
Republicans	39	12	51
Totals	96	38	134

Will Win in House.

More than a majority of the members of the house of representatives answered the inquiry, and these indicate that the president's plans will go through with votes to spare.

The poll shows that they should receive 76 per cent of the votes of the democratic members and 85 1/2 per cent of the republican representatives. This would indicate a vote of 177 democrats and 64 republicans, or a total of 241 votes out of a total membership of 435.

Those replying who announced their opposition to the president's proposals only 10 per cent were democrats and 3 1/2 per cent republicans. The remainder are carried as "non-committal."

A summary of the replies from members of the house of representatives follows:

	No. For	Ag't	Total
Democrats	33	1	34
Republicans	34	4	38

VICTORY IS CLAIMED BY ITALIAN FORCES ATTACKING GORIZIA

Important Austrian Position Captured According to Official Statement.—Bombardment Levels Towns.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Rome, Nov. 17, via Paris, Nov. 18.—A victory for the Italian forces which are attempting to capture Gorizia was announced tonight by the war office. A strong Austrian position north of the city was captured.

The statement follows:

"There is great activity on the part of artillery on both sides all along the front. The enemy's artillery seeks not only to strike at our defenses, but above all to destroy systematically the huge sums within the next five years in the rebuilding of the army and navy will be passed by congress, according to the men in the senate and house who are pushing the administration plan.

Isonto Towns in Ruins.

"Thus on November 14, the enemy fired 12-inch shells into the villages of Loco and Desana in the Yonca valley. Yesterday the enemy's batteries directed bombardments against the once flourishing towns of Mossa and Lucinico on the Isonto plain. These towns are now heaps of smoking ruins.

"Our infantry took by assault a strong entrenchment on the heights overlooking Gorizia. In this position we found a heap of corpses and a large amount of war materials.

"On the Karso, in the Monte San Michele zone, during the night of November 16 and on the following morning the enemy renewed his attacks on our positions recently conquered by us. He was repulsed repeatedly, leaving in our hands two machine guns and sixty prisoners, one of whom was an officer.

"Aeroplane of the enemy yesterday dropped bombs on Alla. There was no loss of life or damage to property.

Drop Bombs on Belluno.

Belluno, Italy, Nov. 17, via Paris, Nov. 18.—An Austrian aeroplane threw five bombs on the city at eight o'clock this morning, but only one exploded. Three persons were slightly injured.

SHOOT I. W. W. SLAYER IN UTAH ON FRIDAY; WILSON'S PLEA FAILS

Chief Executive Backed by Pardon Boards Sends Wilson Reason For Not Showing Man Leniency.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Salt Lake City, Nov. 18, 9:15 p. m.—Governor Spry has declined to interfere in the case of Joseph Hillstrom and has written his reasons and forwarded them by telegraph to President Wilson, who yesterday urged the governor to reconsider the facts of the case.

The board of pardons of Utah are unanimous in backing Governor Spry in his action.

Hillstrom had his choice to meet death either by hanging by the neck until dead, or standing before the firing squad. He chose to be shot. Tomorrow is the date set for the penalty.

REPUBLICANS UNITED SAYS MYRON HERRICK

CAUSES FOR DIVISION HAVE VANISHED, HE TELLS HAMILTON CLUB OF CHICAGO.

PROGRESSIVES RETURN

Two G. O. P. Factions Have Been Inspired Each to Forget the Past and Join to Work for Nation's Benefit.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Causes that lead to a split within the ranks of the republican party have in a large part vanished and the forces are to be reunited, Myron T. Herrick, former ambassador to France, told members of the Hamilton club in an address today.

Progressives Returning.

The republican party has become progressive, Mr. Herrick said, and through the willingness of each party to go half way in affecting a compromise, many progressives have returned to their former allegiance.

"This is a two-party country," he added. "It has never had, and I presume never will have, those multiple divisions by which the citizenship of some other nations are split. Between the two wings of our party there is no difference as to the route or direction, but only as to the speed limits.

"There is no advantage in a three-sided contest, which opens the way for tricks and trades. Any man can make his influence felt in any party but he cannot translate it into an active force for good laws and good government unless that party is powerful enough to put its policies into effect.

"Will Forget the Past.

"Republicans and progressives have been patriotically inspired to forget the past and to join their energies for better service of their country. We are striving for a common end and in this we shall succeed in just the measure that we subordinate personal ambitions and selfishness.

"There is no gulf between us that cannot be bridged when we labor for this end."

TRIES TO SHOOT HIS DAUGHTER BUT FAILED

Green Bay, Nov. 18.—Following an altercation with his children last night, Charles Deno, a saloonkeeper here, snatched a revolver from the drawer and fired at his daughter, Mrs. Spencer Nelligan. The aim was not straight and the girl escaped through a door. Deno made no further attempt to shoot. The girl today refused to make complaint against him. Police Captain Herman Holz swore out a warrant charging Deno with assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

UNFORTUNATE CHILD DIES; SIX PHYSICIANS IMPANELED FOR JURY

Uncommon Offspring of Nature Passed.—Coroner Selects Medical Men for Inquest.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Anna Bollinger, mother of the defective infant which was permitted to die yesterday, was told today of its death. She made no comment except to repeat that denial of the simple operation which would have saved the baby's life, was best for all concerned.

Dr. H. J. Haiselden, who advised against having the infant's life, has been almost without sleep during the forty-eight hours preceding the infant's death, but he was busy in the operating room in the German-American hospital today.

A jury of six of the best known physicians and surgeons of Chicago will be chosen to hear testimony at the inquest. Coroner Hoffman announced he expects to impanel the jury at once and before night select a date for the inquest.

Coroner Hoffman's decision to hold an inquest was made after a consultation with Dr. Henry W. Reinhardt and Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner.

"I have decided to hold an inquest because, for all we know, a similar case might be brought to our attention tomorrow," and we should do something to prevent a similar death, he said. "I am making no criticism of physicians in the hope that they will only object to do something in the interest of humanity. I choose a jury of physicians in the hope that they will make some scientific recommendation to prevent similar occurrences."

Coroner Hoffman reported to Hoffman the result of his post mortem examination of the baby's body.

Dr. Haiselden expressed gratitude when told the inquest had been ordered, though he said the baby's death from natural causes rendered one hardly necessary.

"Any true investigation will make it clear to the public that I am right," he said.

AMERICAN SURVIVOR FILES AN AFFIDAVIT

Denies Austria-Hungarian Government's Statement Regarding Sinking of Ancona.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Nov. 18.—An affidavit by Dr. Cecil Grell, the only native American survivor of the Italian Austro-Hungarian government's official statement that the ship was not shelled by the attacking submarine after she stopped. The state department today was notified of the existence of the affidavit by consular dispatches.

The state department considers that Mrs. Grell's charges that the submarine fired on the ship, and that she was stopped, may be taken as conclusive evidence. Whether warning was given still is an open question. Secretary Lansing considers that the evidence on that feature is inconclusive.

It was pointed out today that because Mrs. Grell was the only native American survivor of the disaster, much weight would be attached to her statement.

The United States probably will make no diplomatic inquiry of Austria-Hungary as to its attitude toward the conduct of submarine warfare as a result of the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona pending receipt of detailed information concerning the attack from the foreign office at Vienna, through Ambassador Pennington.

SERBS IN A BAD FIX

Bulgarians Continue Their Drive Towards Monastir.—Allied Forces Report Victory.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Nov. 18.—News from the Balkans continues to be a patchwork of unconfirmed rumors and contradictory assertions without official statements to establish clearly the present status of affairs.

The Serbian armies, with insufficient ammunition and facing superior numbers, have been attempting vainly to meet the wide turning movement of the Bulgarians threatening Priepel and Monastir.

Some dispatches from Athens report Priepel already in Bulgarian hands. All admit the Serbian position there is untenable and evacuation of the city is inevitable.

News that the Bulgarian advance southward is proceeding rapidly and has reached a point within a few hours of the city of Monastir, has caused consternation in that city, whose population is fleeing to Greek territory.

Judging from the size of the Bulgarian forces rushing from Etovo southward and from the initial success of their new turning movement, which has changed entirely the military situation in southern Serbia, Monastir is in direct danger.

Not only has the Bulgarian movement necessitated abandonment by the Serbians of their positions at Babuna Pass, but Serbian forces which have been holding this entire region are now in peril of being surrounded or cut off by Bulgarian forces advancing southward from Krushevo.

Little is known of the Serbian situation in the north, except that the German and Bulgarians have made fresh gains of consequence.

In southwestern Serbia successes for the French and British are reported. The Bulgarians are said to have been coming to the Vardar front, and to have sustained check at the hands of the British in the Rabbrovo section.

Both England and France have taken part with great enthusiasm in the joint war conference held in Paris.

Victories Over Bulgarians.

Paris, Nov. 18.—Important successes both for the French and British forces in the Balkans were reported by the correspondent of Haas agency.

According to this information, which the correspondent says is unofficial, the Bulgarians have lost the town of Kasturino to the French and have been defeated by the British at Valondovo-Rabrovo front.

The correspondent, whose dispatch was filed yesterday, adds that according to the latest news received by Athens newspapers, the French won a striking victory over the Bulgarians on the Tihirivovo-Shevo-Krusheva front. The battle was waged for two days. The French forces were outnumbered, but used their three-inch guns with great effect. The Bulgarians are said to have sustained such heavy losses that they gave up the fight and retired northward to the right bank of the Vardar river.

German Report.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—The Austro-German forces in Serbia continue to press back their opponents. The town of Kursumlija has been occupied by the German troops after being abandoned by the Serbians. Several hundred Serbians and a number of cannon were captured by the Germans. The Teutonic forces have now reached a line running from Javor, near the Montenegrin border to the north of Raska and to Kursumlija, Radan and Oruglica.

BARTENDER BURGLAR BUNKOES THE COPS

Two Men Hold Up Chicago Saloon.—One Don's Barkeeper's Apron and Stalls Off Policemen.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Luke Ward and a companion today robbed a saloon, James Mahoney, manager of a south side saloon, Clements Brown, night bartender, and a customer, and Luke's companion had the three cowering under a pistol in the back room.

Ward, to avoid suspicion from wayfarers who might peep through the window and observe him taking money out of the register, donned the bartender's apron.

Frank Schmidt, waiting at a nearby corner for Mahoney, came back to see what was delaying his friend. Schmidt notified a fire station and returned to the window. Ward opened the front door.

"Come on in, we're playing a little pitch," invited Ward. Schmidt entered and was relieved of eight cents and bundled with other prisoners in the rear room.

Soon a wagon load of bluecoats surrounded the saloon.

Ward had locked the door and the saloon waiter was taking his hand when the sergeant entered.

"Ah, ha, Sergeant," said Ward. "Somebody has been kidding you. No robbery here. Good night."

The next contingent of bluecoats entered from the rear. Ward was still behind the bar in his apron and the watchdog was again barking his head off. Ward's companion escaped before the police arrived. Ward said he was released from prison two weeks ago, after serving a term for robbery.

BALKED AT PAYING LOW MEAT PRICES

So Thief Helped Himself to Two Dressed Pigs in Metzinger's Slaughter House—Auto Tires Taken.

Despite the record low prices on meat which are now prevailing in this city, due to competition, some thief or thieves took over a cheaper course of supplying his family with pork by the coming winter. They broke into the slaughter house of Arthur G. Metzinger, on the river road near the sand lot, some time last night or early this morning and made away with two dressed hogs.

It was a case of "John the piper's son, stole a pig and away he ran," for the thief had made good his escape so far. The two dressed hogs, of fair weight, were hung up in the house yesterday, and this morning employees missed them. A reward of twenty-five dollars is offered for the apprehension of the thief or thieves. It is considered probable that the thieves drove a wagon up to the slaughter house and drove away with their booty of pork.

Sneak thieves stole a spare tire and rim, auto robe, gauntlet gloves and a few tools from the barn in the rear of the John Metzinger residence, 164 South Academy street, last night or early this morning. The door of the barn was not locked and when the two Metzinger boys returned at a late hour they found the spare tire in the barn. The tire and rim were taken from the guard. There is evidence that the thief or thieves were well acquainted with the place, and the police have hopes of recovering the property.

Last night officers ended the short but sensational career of Thelma Lamond, a young woman from Indiana, in Janesville. The woman, who had been dubbed "Indiana Lou," was arrested on charges of being a road employee, had a habit of remaining in and around the railroad station. She was successful in eluding the police until last night, when two officers in the city arrested her.

It was learned that she came here from Indiana after leaving her husband and stayed at a place south of the city. After a while she was out of Janesville and took up her abode in the future, Chief Champion saw to it that she was deported.

FINED FOR OFFENSE UNDER ORDINANCES

Edward Roach Pays of $17.50 for Allowing Minor to Play Pool.

Edward Roach, who operates the Smoke Shop on East Milwaukee street, was fined fifteen dollars and costs in the municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty to allowing a minor to play pool without a written permit from the boy's parents. The complaint lodged against Roach charged a violation of a city ordinance and is the first prosecution against a billiard or pool room experienced in this city within recent date.

The defendant entered a plea of guilty when sought by Chief Champion reported to the court that an unexpected "hit" to the Smoke Shop that there were three minors playing in the billiard room. The court pointed out that the ordinance provided that minors shall have a "written" permit from their parents before they have any legal right to play pool or billiards. The court in court that many fathers announced at court that many fathers play pool or billiards with their children, but neglected to make other than a verbal agreement. He also stated that it was his policy to refuse entrance to minors on the objections of parents, and since costs amounting to $17.50 was paid.

In some of these pool halls they allow boys to play when they are not bigger than the balls. The law states clearly that they cannot play without a written permit and any verbal agreement between the parent and the billiard hall owners does not protect the owner from arrest and conviction. It must be in writing. Unless these violations stop there will be further arrests," said Chief Champion this morning.

RIVER FALLS ELEVEN STOPS HERE TONIGHT

Northern Section Normal School Champions Rest in the City for Whitewater Game on Friday.

Members of the River Falls Normal school football squad and coaches will spend tonight in Janesville, going to Whitewater tomorrow where the two teams will fight for the state normal school championship. The normal schoolers are scheduled to arrive here at 6:05. There are twenty-three in the party.

They spent the greater part of the day on the trip, having left River Falls about eight o'clock this morning. Short workouts during waiting periods were conducted by Coach Swenson. Local Y. M. C. A. officials have announced that the team will go through a secret practice at the association building, following the clearing of the gymnasium of the regular classes tonight.

River Falls has cleaned up everything in the northern section of the state and have run up some large scores. The pine bluffs district normal team is a strong aggregation and has developed an attack and a defense equal to any of the fresh water colleges of the state. Schutte, captain, at quarterback, and the Eggebrecht brothers at either half, with Christian at an end and Guenther at guard, have played together for three years ago, and aside from this season's playing on the normal team, the quintet has seen two years in high school uniforms.

Dispute over the matter as to the umpire, which for a time threatened to terminate in a disruption in relations between the two schools, has been settled, and E. J. Haumerson, son of River Falls, did not want the local man to act, due to the fact that he was a Whitewater alumnus and having played for the past two seasons affiliated with the team number of home games. Coach Scheiber of Whitewater refused to listen to the plea for another official and the northerners finally conceded the point.

OBITUARY

W. B. Knight, a former resident of Janesville, passed away yesterday at his home at Tower City, N. D., according to information received here by relatives. The deceased resided here until seven years ago, when he was printer by trade. Surviving, besides the widow, were Pearl Lloyd, a sister, and two daughters, Mable and Elsie. It is expected that the remains will arrive in Janesville some time tomorrow. The services will be held on Saturday and burial will be made at Oak Hill cemetery.

GOVERNMENT MAKES NEW PRECAUTIONS

Specialists Recommend Methods of Handling Poultry Under Adverse Weather Conditions.

Poultry packers are urged by the specialists of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, to give unusual attention to preparing and packing their birds for shipment, particularly if the mild weather which has been widely prevalent this autumn, continues. The poultry specialists say that the weather conditions in many sections have been very similar to those which prevailed in the autumn of 1913, and which, as poultry shippers will remember, proved disastrous to all packers who did not dress, chill, and pack properly.

The specialists therefore recommend the particular observance of the following methods of handling dressed poultry, which are essential to a perfect product, any time and are of vital importance whenever weather conditions are unfavorable.

1. Keep the holding batteries for your incoming stock clean, well aired, and free from vermin, and see that the chickens have plenty of fresh water and plenty to eat.

2. Don't kill a chicken when the crop is full of feed. Give the chicken food for 24 hours before it is killed. Food for 24 hours in the intestines of a dressed chicken causes loss of flavor and hastens decay, which more than offsets any gain from extra weight.

3. Good bleeding is absolutely essential to a good appearance on the market and retards decay. Circular 61, Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, explains the best methods of bleeding and loosening the feather muscles for dry picking.

4. Hang the chicken by both feet while picking. Hanging by one leg spoils the shape of the bird. Picking on the leg gets the skin dirty and hastens decay.

5. Chill every dressed bird until the body temperature is below 35 degrees. A large barrel makes an undesirable package, because where poultry is packed in large masses the weight of the upper layers crushes the birds at the bottom.

6. Line all packages with parchment paper and cover the top of the poultry before the lid is put on. 7. Wrap each bird in a suitable paper so that blood from one bird will not mar the appearance of another.

8. Use only good refrigerator cars and get that they are in good order and that the car is 24 hours before loading. The car, at the end of 24 hours, should show a temperature below 40 degrees F. at a point 4 feet above the floor and between the doors.

9. Never handle chickens roughly either before or after killing. Rough handling causes bruises, broken feathers, and soft places in the flesh. These things are the part of the killers and pickers and in lowered keeping quality and poor appearance of the product.

10. Piece work which leads to quantity rather than quality makes for low prices on the market. Remember that the piece should be made so that they sell by the quality of the piece.

Boys Will Entertain Their Girl Friends at the Y. M. C. A. Tomorrow Evening—Plan Big Time.

Tomorrow evening at the Young Men's Christian association the boys of the high school district will enjoy their first social event of the season. It will take the form of a co-ed social and only the members of the cabinet and the lady friends and the chaperones will be present. The evening will be spent in playing the different games and several surprises will be on hand to make the evening more pleasant. A buffet lunch will be served during the dinner.

The committee of women in charge are the following: Mesdames Wolcott, Nichols, Doane, Hoan, Huebel, and the ladies of the social work committee of the mothers' club will act as chaperones. The following boys are members of the high school cabinet: Dean Kimball, Clark Finley, Edward Ewing, Harold Buell, Kurt Fuchs, Robert Lange, Halbert, Russell, Marshall Davis, Luther Mills, Merrill Nowlan, Austin Sprackling, Eaton Jenkins, Magnus Hanson.

CRITICISE PHILIPP FOR OMITTING DIET

Madison Ministers See Fault in Thanksgiving Day Proclamation.—Governor's Attitude.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—The criticism of the Madison ministers because of the omission of the word "God" in their Thanksgiving day proclamation reminds me of the story of the old schoolmaster who delivered the same prayer every day, said Governor Philipp last night, when he saw a list of quotations from local clergymen complaining because his proclamation had made no specific mention of the Deity. "The prayer of the schoolmaster began: 'We appeal to Thee, O God, not in the spirit of dictation, but to offer a few suggestions.' 'I want to say to the ministers that they have no more reverence for Deity than have I, and in my proclamation I said: 'It is fitting that we receive these favors of Providence in a spirit of gratitude. And in Providence in that sense means God. 'I have followed the time honored custom of calling upon the people for an expression of gratitude. I have no right to dictate to anyone how his gratitude shall be expressed—hence I leave it to every man to follow the dictates of his own conscience. Ministers should remember that it is one thing to be a minister and serve his flock and it is quite a different thing to be a public officer in the service of all of the people.'"

EXPECT A TIE IN THE "BIG 9" RACE AFTER LAST GAMES

Wisconsin and Illinois "Doped" to Win Saturday's Game and Hold Claims to Title.

(By Strikes.)

All indications point toward a hopelessly close race between the two teams this year with Minnesota and Illinois both claiming to title, with each having equally just claims, all because of the tie game played two weeks ago, 6 to 6 between Wisconsin and Illinois at Madison and Chicago and at Chicago and Illinois at Chicago and the conference season this year with Illinois probably sharing the championship with the team without a dispute last year.

Because of the many upsets, no team is sure of a victory Saturday. But it is reasonably predicted that Wisconsin is going to beat Illinois in and that the Maroons are going to fall before the Illinois squad. The showing of Wisconsin has been a bitter disappointment to the followers. Just now there is a sentiment abroad to remove Juneau from the coaching job and it would not be much of a surprise to see a new coach directing the Badgers next year. First Wisconsin inspired but followed by playing in mid-season form and wallowing weak eleven by one-sided scores. This gave rise to the reports of her wonderful offensive ability. But right here is where Wisconsin is weak. The weakness is the direct result of the loss of the 14 to 13 game to Chicago for the Badgers with their strong line expected to trample over the Maroons without trouble. Coaching ability of Slagge stepped in and double crossed Juneau and as football is made up of seventy-five per cent light, the Badgers lost by a lone point. The cherished hopes of a conference championship were dashed away in this game.

Chicago Out.

Chicago was undefeated up to last Saturday, when they ran up against the coaching ability of Dr. Williams and his tribe of Minnesota. The Maroons were able to stop the play which Williams has made famous and the steam roller tactics. Chicago went out of the race after a narrow fight in this game. Wisconsin lost to Illinois 17 to 3, and the down states showed some great open attack play. Wisconsin, it appears, cannot improve to hold Minnesota, and the game the Illinois and Minnesota will undoubtedly play the same open field game against Wisconsin as the Badgers have been none too strong this season. The Illinois team is a strong player in the line and is equal to any two line men of the Illinois aggregation. But one man cannot make up for the weakness of seven others, even if Captain Buck makes an effort to do it. Both Illinois and Minnesota have shown vast improvement and the same cannot be said of Wisconsin or Chicago. Reports have it that Wisconsin is in open their bug of the trip against Minnesota the coming Saturday in hopes of winning. The Gophers in the past always had Wisconsin's "numb" on their minds and the game of the football world. This year Yale was cheered by Virginia, Washington and Jefferson, Colgate and finally Brown. Yale was deep in the rut of defeat two weeks ago. Tom Shevlin went to Yale with a wrecking crew of coaches and instilled enough fight in the disheartened players not to have off annihilation by Minnesota, but actually beat them. That result was the biggest surprise of the year. Yale has a new team. They are fighters now with their heads up and they successfully played a drama game with Yale instead of a comedy expected.

The Yale victory was due to Tiger weaknesses and the breath of football life is bound to grow during the present week for the Harvard game. Harvard with second string men beat Brown, who beat Yale, but this "dope" counts for nothing as it was the old team that Brown met at New Haven. Guernsey proved to be a kicking hero for Yale and Saturday he will have a real rival in Mahan, Harvard's star.

Will Develop. The football that Yale showed in the Princeton game was far from the highest that the team has been of with its new lease of life. They were not skilled with forward passing and it is probable that they reserved this style of game for Harvard. The Yale and play was weak, for the line backs had no trouble in getting around the flanks. Yale may be equipped to meet the Haughton attack. Shevlin has employed famous plays most of the fifty-yard "shift" of Dr. Williams, Minnesota coach. Eastern reports show that Yale had her usual "Yale luck," an acknowledged factor in the past, in the Princeton game and against Harvard this "luck" is nearly always evident.

The clash promises to become a kicking duel between Mahan and Guernsey. Mahan has not shown much in real games because Harvard has not resorted to this type of game. On the other hand, Mahan is capable of putting up a good game with deadly accuracy. The fifty-yard line and punting twenty yards further than Guernsey. On paper, the Harvard backfield of Mahan, Enright and Knight looks far better than does the Yale offense and their line. Harvard, which Yale failed to do, it is strictly a question whether Yale can improve enough under Shevlin to outplay Guernsey's driving force with their powerful interference.

For the first time in years, the result will have no bearing on the eastern title.

FRED RAU PLAYING ON RESERVE ELEVEN

St. John's Military School Makes Championship Claims—Janesville Youth on Squad.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Delaford, Wis. Nov. 18.—With the strongest football team in the history of the institution, St. John's Military Academy, Delaford, Wis., now acknowledged middle west champions of preparatory schools, will seek a post-season contest with the leaders of the eastern sections to settle the national inter-academic title. Coached by Ralph Fletcher, former freshman star of Chicago University, the team has a record of five straight victories this year and has twice passed the century mark in scores over opponents. Janesville is represented on this squad by Fred Rau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Rau, Sr., 512 West Milwaukee street. Rau is a member of the reserves, who are often called upon to take the place of regulars in a game, and has showed up well each time. In event the proposed eastern contest is played, he will be one of the squad to make the trip. Rau is captain of the football team of the corps of cadets, and a member of the Kappa club, one of the most flourishing of the academy organizations.

BADGERS WORK HARD FOR GOPHER CONTEST

Attempt to Strengthen Line to Meet Powerful Minnesota Team Saturday.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Nov. 18.—Fearing that students would have a tendency to cut classes Saturday morning, the dedication and parade have been postponed until a later time. This means that the site for the new stadium will not be dedicated with the exercises, as was originally planned. The remaining activities of the day will be carried on as will the Friday evening events. At the big mass meeting at the gym Friday night, slides of the players on the squad will be shown on the screen, after which Coaches Juneau, Wilson and Lee, and Captain Buck will talk to the homecoming committee is arranging some other features for the day.

The Badgers are working hard this week in preparation for the final game with the Gophers. Minnesota will invade Camp Randall with one of the strongest eleven that has ever represented the northern institution, and despite rumors, Coach Juneau is expecting his men to give a good account of themselves. It is very likely that Taylor will play quarter with Eber Simpson at Byers' place in the backfield.

Taylor looks like a speed demon at running the team. He was the only Badger player, excepting possibly Buck, who was able to insinuate into the players' minds that the team was a quick thinker and students are wondering why he was not given a chance earlier in the year. Kreuz will be forced to play at fullback, with Helger suffering from a broken rib and Galvin out of school. Berk is the only other trained fullback in school. If George Simpson is declared ineligible, Gardner will play at his old guard position with Hancock at the other guard. Capt. Buck and either Rosenberger or Koch will play at tackle with "Eddie" Stavrum and Meyers at end. Wisconsin fears the playing of a broken line. Realizing that Minnesota possesses a powerful line, the Badger forewarns is being bolstered up to stop any vicious attacks from the northmen. Wisconsin is given a chance to win because of the fact that the game is being played at Madison, and that the Badgers have been more or less lucky against Minnesota on her own gridiron.

ENWRIGHT WILL NOT PLAY IN YALE GAME

Harvard's Heaviest Best Plunging Back Drops in Studies—Yale Confident.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—On the eve of the crucial contest with Yale the Harvard football team lost one of its strongest half backs when the college office today yanked big Tom Enwright out of varsity competition. Enwright failed to pass a satisfactory test during the recent hour exams, and as a result is out of Harvard sports for some time to come.

Enwright was the huskiest man in the backfield. Coach Haughton, in an effort to have a strong line, had decided to start the Fall River bay against the Blue instead of Billy Boles.

Enwright a Star. Enwright captained the freshman team last fall. He has been unable to do much work this season because of injuries, but in the Brown game Saturday he averaged nearly four yards to each rush.

Wink Rollins, the best punter on the squad, next to Capt. Mahon, is also likely to be missing Saturday. He was hurt in the Brown game. Trainer Donovan has not definitely decided whether Mose Taylor, varsity right guard, will be able to open against the Shevinites.

The final home practice of the year will take place tomorrow. More than 2,000 students will participate in a march to the field to cheer the players.

A big mass meeting was held in the Union Building tonight at which the varsity players were seated on the stage. Coach Haughton and Capt. Mahan addressed the students.

New Haven, Conn. Nov. 18.—When the Yale varsity players invaded its bowl, twenty coaches greeted them and drove them through light scrimmage work. Illustrating methods of stopping the Harvard attack. Harry Legore was placed on the second team, using plays favored by Mahan. In every case the scrubs were checked. The coaches complimented the players, informing them their defensive showing was the best of the season. Following the scrimmage, Ous Quernsey drop kicked six out of eight field goals, two from the forty-three yard line, with the scrubs charging through. Parker Allen has been selected for right end, completing the lineup against Harvard. Otherwise the team will be arranged as against Princeton. Major Louis Stoddard gave the team a beefsteak dinner and a vaudeville entertainment last night. The players left today for training quarters at Auburndale.

MORRIS MILLER

Bob Zuppke, the University of Illinois coach, says Cornell is no better than Minnesota, but Walter Boker-sail gives the Ithacans the highest praise. He was an official of the Cornell-Minnesota game and this is what he thinks of the Cornell team. Cornell is one of the most powerful and versatile eleven seen by the writer in years. It is as strong offensively as defensively. can play the old and new game equally well, and the players are the most aggressive seen in the west this year. They tackle hard, while their checking and blocking hardly can have been improved upon.

Recent dispatches from Sydney, Australia, say that subscriptions are to be received—notwithstanding the disturbing effects of the war—by the Australasian Lawn Tennis association to establish a fund, the interest from which will be used for a trophy to perpetuate the memory of the late Capt. Anthony F. Wilding of New Zealand, who was with Norman E. Brookes of Australia, a holder of the Davis cup. The cup was retained for Australia by the pair in the United States in 1914. Wilding enlisted in the British army shortly after the outbreak of the war and was killed in the Dardanelles fighting.

Frank Moran, leading aspirant for the heavyweight championship, believes that Jess Willard's chief weakness lies in his inability to assimilate hard body blows. According to Frank, a few drives amidsthips will topple the pugilistic colossus. Jack Johnson made the same prediction just before the famous battle of Marianne. To prove the correctness of his theory he landed blows with the precision and power of a thirteen-inch shell all along Willard's waist line. The net result was several red spots on the latter's smooth torso. Possibly Moran can do better, but Missouri still has several inhabitants.

A fight between Jack Johnson and Sam Langford is projected for the near future in Montreal, Quebec. Dick Keegan, a fight promoter, is mentioned as back of the idea. The reported distance of the go is twenty rounds.

Despite the fact that the Phillies won the National league pennant with ease, there will be those to pick the Braves to repeat their feat of 1914 next year. Stallings is sure to have a much improved ball team. He has picked up a number of youngsters who was expected to show better form than some of the players he had to use in the last campaign, and there also is hope that Bill James, the star pitcher of the world champions of a year ago, will regain the use of his pitching arm. But even if this should not come to pass, Stallings will be better fortified with pitchers than he has been, for the addition of Barnes and Neff is sure to make the Braves' twirling department one of the strongest in the old league. Though the Braves were for long periods without the services of Johnny Evers, and really never had Pitcher James to call on, they finished a good second, and this would indicate that they do not require any great changes to again make the team a pennant winner, for the company is not particularly formidable.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Unsettled weather tonight and Friday, probably rain or snow; colder Friday; fresh winds.

SOME FACTS.

One of the most amusing incidents of recent politics in Wisconsin is the attack made upon Governor Philipp and his administration by a Madison paper in an editorial denouncing blue laws. The recent discussion in Milwaukee as to the closing of grocery stores and meat markets on Sunday is seized upon by this anti-Philipp paper as an opportunity to misstate facts.

As a matter of fact, the law under which the attempt is being made to close the stores on Sunday was introduced in the state senate by Senator Richards of Milwaukee, an anti-administration senator whenever he was in his seat. The records show that he was absent a great deal of the time. The records further show that whenever he did come to Madison it was to vote against administration measure and then return to Milwaukee.

So much for the author of the law. The records show that in the senate the bill was passed without a dissenting vote, therefore disproving any charge that it was an administration measure. When the bill went over to the assembly the socialist members, who certainly were not administration men, took up the fight for it and spoke for it on the floor. The bill passed the assembly without a dissenting vote and came to Governor Philipp with the approval of every one of the one hundred thirty-three members of the legislature.

In addition to this the law was urged by delegates from labor unions in Milwaukee and in other cities and representatives of small stores and meat markets, and the argument for it was that the clerks in these small stores were entitled to one day of rest or recreation. It was argued that the law would cause little inconvenience when it was in operation.

To allow the people of Milwaukee to prepare for the situation the law was made effective November 1, instead of after its passage and publication. It comes this Madison paper, which some time ago invaded the editorial members of the legislature, and printed a roll call showing that their votes were one hundred per cent pure, with this silly attempt to fasten the law—whether it be good or bad—upon Governor Philipp.

It was just another one of the desperate steps taken by anti-administration men.

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES.

While the democrats appear to have but one choice for their presidential nominee, Woodrow Wilson, and it is even announced, that Champ Clark will place his nomination when the democratic love fest takes place, the republicans are much at sea as to who will be their standard bearer. There are enough favorite sons in the field, with their lightning rods all firmly planted, many with promises of their own state delegations as nucleus for their boom, and others even invading outside territory in hopes of securing aid from various quarters.

The first thought turns of course towards former Presidents Taft and Roosevelt, but it is safe to say that both these gentlemen are out of the race and the choice will lie in some other direction. The recent elections have shown a decided tendency of the republicans who follow the republican nomination to the highest office in the union; Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana, former United States senator and former vice-president of the United States; Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, United States senator; Elihu Root of New York, former United States senator and former secretary of state; John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, United States senator; William E. Borah of Idaho, United States senator; Lawrence T. Sherman of Illinois, United States senator; Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, former United States senator; Hiram W. Johnson, governor of California; Charles S. Whitman, governor of New York; Martin G. Brumbaugh, governor of Pennsylvania; Frank B. Willis, governor of Ohio; James R. Mann of Illinois, representative in congress and minority leader of the house; Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin, former governor, and Herbert Spencer Hadley of Missouri, former governor.

The more closely the careers of the men named in this list are scrutinized the more creditable will the roll appear. It is by no means exclusive. The probability is that it will be greatly lengthened before the summer of 1916.

FOOTBALL HAZARDS.

Every season at this time of year one is used to read much about the perils of football. There was a chorus of attack on the slaughter of our college and high school innocents. The game was denounced as merely beefy and brutal.

One scarcely sees a line of that this fall. Yet there are always about the usual number of football accidents. In spite of attempts to open up the play, it will always be a game for strong boys, capable of giving and taking hard knocks.

Perhaps the European war has made us indifferent to the chances of death and accident lying all around us. We are thousands dying daily in the trenches, the sacrifice of a few tuckers and quarterbacks seems a mere incident. The intimate circle of friends may be indignant, but no popular feeling is aroused.

The long story of automobile accidents every day, may be a factor. With father and mother doing forty miles an hour out on the motor road, they can't say much about the son who risks having his spine snapped by a rough tackle.

Swimming causes a hundred times more fatalities than football. But no one ever started a crusade against water sports.

The American people are a nation of chance-takers. They hate to quit on anything on which their heart becomes set, and only in their cooler moments do they weigh chances. They dislike to admit in public that they are afraid of anything.

They would live just as happily if they formed the daily habit of taking more careful precautions. Swimming, by beginners at least, could be protected by having regular provision of life guards. The motor roads could be made comparatively safe by a drastic enforcement of existing laws. Football might be reformed into the game as played in England, where accidents are comparatively few.

But efforts for such precautions are contrary to the national temperament. People who never had a serious accident are sustained by the cheerful optimism that nothing ever will happen.

The question is asked what has become of the Old Timer who used to put his money into government bonds because the savings banks were too risky? Well, apparently he has bequeathed a modest estate to his son who has promptly invested in war stocks at top prices.

In many places the fire risks in school buildings are being investigated, owing to recent disasters. It will usually be considered prudent not to spend any money though until after there have been some more fatalities.

Although a famine in one dollar bills is reported, the tradesmen at the back door as usual will have accounts of $3.56, $4.50 and $4.75 to be settled, and will be unable to make any change.

Apparently the useless army posts must be continued, the military necessity for the same being the presence of influential congressmen from the districts where these posts are located.

Some people seem to think that by creating a lot of new banking organizations and paying salaries to a lot more people, the farmers are going to be able to borrow money for four per cent instead of seven.

The fact that the public will wade through two pages of football news every Sunday does not mean that you can get them to read a half column article on the tariff.

When you can't think of any other reason for asking the customary annual advance in the price of anything, it is always perfectly safe to charge it up to the war in Europe.

It seems to be difficult for the farmers to fit up their cow barns with new sanitary equipment, as it is taking all their money this year to build garages.

There is a growing feeling that boys should complete their education by going at least through the high school as it works mischief with the football team if they don't.

Warm November days are welcomed not so much because they help clean up farm and garden work, as because they promote large attendance at football.

It is surprising how a man's enthusiasm for social revolution cools off when he succeeds in getting $150 in a bank.

The congressmen are preparing for the coming session not by studying the problems of government, but by finding out which of the office-seekers have the biggest pull.

A government crisis occurs over in Europe when someone resigns, and in this country it happens when some politician doesn't get a job.

The people of this country are gritting their teeth and resolving that militarism must be crushed, if it takes the last European peasant to do it.

The geese are flying south, including some that spend the winter at Smart Set hotels.

It is quite possible to make a satisfactory run with an automobile even if the driver does have to get along with water to drink.

A man considers it something of a distinction if his beard is hard to cut.

A young girl looks pretty well in anything. But an old girl has to be mighty particular about her clothes.

He was a senator.
A venerable sage.
I asked him if he would tell me.
The secret of his age.
"Gad, look! my lad, I do not know,"
Thus feelingly he spoke.
"I do not drink,
I seldom think,
I do not chew or smoke."

"My habits are most regular;
All vice I have tabooed;
My morals are
Much over par.
I Fletcherize my food;
I never wear a safety blade;
I've led a quiet life;
I've made no bets;
I've paid my debts,
I'm trusted by my wife."

"Thus, you will see I cannot tell
Why I have lived so long.
For I've been good.
As all men should.
I have done nothing wrong."
"Oh—venerable sage," I said.
"If future bliss you'd prize,
And heaven gain,
You should abstain
From such whopping lies!"

This trusty blade shall rend you limb from limb.

This battle ode shall be your parting hymn.
A mighty host against you formed today.
Waits eagerly the starting of the fray.

Naught will be left. Destruction most complete
Is your sad lot. This day you are our meat.
So girl your loins. To the arena now,
Make haste and come, for I do hereby vow.

Though menace of dyspepsia lingers
This one will be a rout devoid of fear.
Though I do moan and toss in pain
I'll know 'twill there's one bird that's been trimmed up right.

The waves were mounting high, each dash of spray was equal in volume to the foam on 77,888,075 growlers, 77 glasses of beer.

The wrecked Mary O'Poet climbed up one wave and down the next, up the next and down one.

"Higgins," gasped able seaman Tookitts, "my second day may be our last on earth."

"You mean on sea," gasped "Holy Henry" Higgins, always a stickler for the exact truth.

"Higgins," gasped Tookitts, "the rest of us always laughed at you for preachin' and prayin' ways about the decks. But now here's us two in a little egg shell climbin' up one wave and down the next, with any second wave our last, and you're the only one knows how to pray."

"The reward of the righteous is manifold," gasped Holy Henry Higgins.

"I've just discovered there's only one life preserver aboard," gasped Tookitts. "You pray and I'll put it on."

A wave big as two mountains made straight for them, and a dark-faced sea gull barked shrilly.

Dinner Stories

The dealer in antiques was showing an old violin to a probable buyer.

"Yes," he said, "that is of historical interest; that is the identical fiddle Nero played while Rome was burning!"

"Oh, that's a myth," the dealer agreed, saying: "Yes, it is; and Myth's name was on it, but it's got worn off."

"That boy of ours is a lazy good-for-nothing loafer," growled the head of the family. "He doesn't seem to want to do anything at all."

NOTHING KNOWN OF THE PROPOSED SUIT

Local Heirs of Late John J. McGinnity of Dener Not Informed as to Latest Action in Court.
From Denver comes the following dispatch that relatives of the late John J. McGinnity, millionaire lumberman, will bring suit immediately to recover $100,000 from Will P. McPherson, his business partner, and other heirs to the estate because an autopsy, unauthorized by the relatives and unnecessary to ascertain the cause of death, was performed on McGinnity's body.
Thomas McGinnity, brother of the lumber king, and his son, the Rev. Father James McGinnity, who have been in Denver making an investigation into the affairs of the estate, left for their home in Walwick, Wis., on Tuesday, but announced that they would return shortly to start the suit.
McGinnity's will, given $25,000 by his brother's will, and the amount has been paid by the estate. As there was some doubt regarding the real cause of his death, an autopsy was held at McPherson's, who was the heir to nearly all of the $1,000,000 estate, had given his permission.
Reverend James McGinnity of Milwaukee, a nephew of the deceased millionaire, stated that he had not been informed of the proposed suit and did not think the above statement correct. By the terms of the will of the late John McGinnity, St. Joseph's Hospital, in this city, each received the sum of ten thousand dollars, and among the heirs were Father James McGinnity of Milwaukee and Sisters Agatha and Cecilia of St. Joseph's Hospital, this city.
The late John McGinnity died in Denver following a visit with Janeville relatives over a year ago, almost immediately upon his return to Denver.

FARMERS ORGANIZE NEW ASSOCIATION

Twenty-five Farmers Meet at Milton and Organize and Elect Officers for New Association.
Twenty-five farmers of Rock county met last night in Milton and organized the Rock County Co-operative Farming association. A few matters were brought up and then the officers elected. A. G. Austin was elected president and H. M. Burdick was chosen secretary and treasurer.
The object of the association is to see to the betterment of the production and incomes of the cows. The charter membership of the new association is twenty-five and this number will undoubtedly grow larger as other farmers see the work which will be accomplished.

ST. PAUL TRAIN DERAILED IN MADISON EARLY TODAY

(By Associated Press.)
Madison, Nov. 18.—Passengers on the Chicago train of the Milwaukee road, leaving here at 6:30 this morning, might have fared worse than being delayed on their journey for two hours, when the engine left the track near Anglemore station.
The accident happened at a point where the city has just finished laying an intercepting sewer. The cause of the accident was due to the fact that the filling had not yet settled, and the rails spread. Workmen said the pan of the engine fell on the roadbed, derailing it. A crew was at work several hours later straightening out the roadbed. Trains were re-routed. No one was injured.

SIAMESE SOVEREIGN WON'T WED SISTER

The king of Siam recently announced that he would remain forever a bachelor. He has refused to marry for the inexorable law of his country says that a king must marry either a sister or half sister. Educated at Oxford, this idea is very abhorrent to the monarch.

FULTON KNOCKS OUT ANDRE ANDERSON IN THE FOURTH

Milwaukee, Nov. 18.—Fred Fulton, giant heavyweight, knocked out the championship aspirations of Andre Anderson, Chicago, in the fourth round of a scheduled ten round bout at Milwaukee last night. The exhibition was so poor that it is doubtful if Milwaukee will ever see another bout between heavyweights. The fans being dissatisfied, in the fourth round scored two knockdowns and then knocked out the former wrestler for ten minutes. Len Rowlands outpointed Jack Herrick in the second round, which was the best bout of the evening.

(Notices furnished by the theatres)
AT THE MAJESTIC.

Anita Stewart, in the $1,000 Prize Photoplay.
"The Sins of the Mothers" is a story of gambling. The heroine is a beautiful girl. She loves cards. She loves races. She loves roulette. She loves all games of chance. She loves them with a passion that is a mania.
You know how the drug habit can grip a man, or the liquor habit. You know to what lengths it will lead him. This girl inherits a similar craving, craving for gambling. It is born in her. Her mother before had the gambler's instinct. She secretly kept a gambling house.
You see this girl returning from a convent where her mother sent her as a child. You see her about to enter society.
She is loved by a strong man. Her future is before her. She is taught to play cards. You see her heritage assert itself. You see it grip and hold her in its meshes. She can't resist it. The bridge tables of fashionable society—then to the races—and finally to the notorious gambling hell formerly kept by her mother!
You see the great race track scene. You know how a Vitaphone can stage a scene like this.
You see the inside of the gambling house—the gamblers. You see the maid who has become a District Attorney. He doesn't know she is there. You see what happens.
Anita Stewart and Earle Williams do some of their very finest work in this rare production, which is shown at the Majestic tonight and tomorrow.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Viola Allen in "The White Sister."
Of extraordinary interest is the announcement that Essena's magnificent six-act production of "The White Sister," with Viola Allen, will be shown here for four days, beginning next Tuesday. This illustrates the present aggressiveness of the Majestic management, seizing upon the very finest picture productions and offering them at the prices necessitated by the great expense.

AT THE APOLLO.

Real Bull Fight in "Carmen."
The bulls used in the bull fight scenes in "Carmen," the photodramatic version of the famous opera in which Geraldine Farrar is to appear at the Apollo soon, were imported from the famous Madero ranch in Northern Mexico especially for the scenes in which they appear. Accompanying them came a troupe of professional Spanish swordsmen, who were forced to leave Mexico on account of the revolution.

AT THE PRINCESS.

Ella Hall in "Jewel" Tomorrow.
Did you ever cry from sheer happiness? Did you ever laugh with a jump in your throat, while little thrills of joy swept over you? Did you ever see a photoplay so sweet and wholesome that the effect was that of a mental bath?
Were you ever so lifted out of your self that you forgot to think of your thoughts and feel of your feelings? Can you imagine a play so strong as to make you oblivious to your surroundings, and yet so tender as to be comparable only to the dainty fragile things of life?
Did you ever see a play so satisfying that you wanted to get away by your own show here for four days to live in scenes over again in memory? A picture so "altogether lovely" you would rather leave the theatre than to have your inward vision destroyed by the next play on the program?
That's "Jewel." Coming to the Princess Friday.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Lady Luxury," a merry musical comedy, will appear at the Myers theatre. A brief outline of the plot is given herewith:
Lady Luxury is the title bestowed upon a young heiress who has been brought up in comparative poverty until she reaches the age of twenty-one and comes into her own money. She decides to make the money fly in an effort to get every enjoyment possible out of life. But while she finds that money can purchase almost everything, the old-fashioned thing called love comes unsought and she finds that even gold is not a barrier to happiness.
Florence Webber, an attractive young prima donna, will sing the title role. Ernest Hunt, the leading baritone, will be remembered as "The Chocolate Soldier," Arthur Albino, the leading tenor, was Marguerite Sylva's leading man in "Gypsy Love"; Joseph W. Herbert was principal comedian in "The Waltz King" and later on Busing originated the role of Mascha in "The Chocolate Soldier," and later appeared with great individual success in both "Gypsy Love" and "The Merry Comedians." Eddie Morris was the original juvenile in "The Pink Lady"; Emily Fitzroy has been leading woman for Sir Charles Wyndham of the Britton theatre, London, and later in a like capacity George, Mrs. Fiske and William Collier. Gypsy Dale was prima donna soubrette for that fairyland extravaganza "The Pink-Tok Man of Oz" and Sam J. Burton played the principal character role in "The Littlest Rebel."
A special symphony orchestra under the leadership of that well known conductor, Signor A. De Nove, will render the twenty odd stirring melodies and the ensemble will include forty-four stunning Casino beauties.

RESULTS OF FIVE YEARS OF WAR IN MEXICO DOUBTFUL

Diaz Dead, Madero Assassinated, Huerta Exiled and Under Arrest and War Still Continues.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Diaz dead in exile, Madero assassinated; Huerta exiled and under arrest; Villard outlawed; Carranza leading a "de facto" unestablished government, with civil war still raging.
This is the record of five years in Mexico, a nation that has known der fire, sword and famine. It is the record of a struggle for a real republican government, a real democracy, a republic in form and substance, a struggle of the masses against the classes.
Behind the curtain of arms on the stage of battlefields is the long stifled cry for land. The effort of Mexico's peasants to own and prevent exploitation and graft, both by their own and foreign citizens, are the underlying causes of what now promises to become in Mexican history the "Five Years' War."
The fight divides into three eras: those of Diaz, Madero, Huerta. Its immediate future rests with Carranza. Peace, but not liberty or equal in Diaz for opportunity, reigned under Diaz for a generation. As President and dictator the "Iron Man" was in power from 1884 to 1910. As a military idol on a platform of freedom and land distribution, Diaz led a revolution in 1910 against President Porfirio. He was elected president in 1911, retiring in 1911 in favor of Manuel Gonzalez, being re-elected in 1913 and dying until forced to abdicate in 1910. Diaz was the exponent of special privilege. He held his office with ruthless military force. Graft flourished among his subordinates. Wealthy, educated Mexicans supported him. Foreign concessions thrived. Land barons extended their holdings. The poorer classes were slaves, unable to rent or buy land. Unprecedented Mexican development followed—for the wealthy. Peace prevailed.
Then came decay, with age, of Diaz' power. Outcry against the clericalism, or wealthy, landed and educated classes increased. The peasants demanded distribution of government land, relief from confiscatory taxes and a voice in elections. Soldiers presided over the polls, insuring Diaz' re-election. Wealthy and powerful private citizens, civil authorities and military heads failed to stem the tide of revolution.
The Madero movement was born in 1909. Francisco I. Madero, of a wealthy family of northern ranchers, led a new revolution. He promised social and economic reforms, including division of government lands and cancellation by the government to end. Aiding Madero was his brother, Guaymas and Francisco Orozco. They organized a revolutionary army in Sonora. It soon seized Juarez and swept southward, reinforced by revolutionists from Chihuahua and other northern states. The hotbed of revolutionary activity, Huasteca, suffered as to whether Pancho Villa, who became a popular hero, enlisted in the Madero movement.
Wealthy foreign mine, oil and ranch concessionaires supported Madero. Others supported Diaz, whose power weakened with age, his army honeycombed with treachery and desertion. Diaz resigned and fled to Paris, where he died last summer.
Francisco Madero was elected to the Presidency in 1910.

REPORT SMALL POX CASES ON DECREASE

State Health Officials Show Decided Decline in Places Where Disease Is Epidemic.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—Smallpox is epidemic in parts of Wisconsin, but is being kept well in hand through the activity of the deputy state health officers, co-operating with local health officials. For the first ten months of 1915, 1,415 cases were reported. In the same period five deaths were recorded. Last September only 23 cases were reported, and in June, 56. Not for several years have the monthly reports of cases been so low.
From a total of 6,283 cases and 37 deaths in 1902, the disease stalked in many lumber camps, 3,302 cases and three deaths in 1914, the record of smallpox in Wisconsin is one of unceasing warfare through rigid quarantine and vaccination measures applied through the agency of the state board of health. In earlier years laxity of quarantine and improper disinfection accounted for the widespread run of this dangerous infection.
Throughout the German empire only 26 cases and five deaths occurred in 1904, under compulsory vaccination. In countries where vaccination is compulsory the number of cases of smallpox during 1905 per million inhabitants was: Germany, 1.1 cases; Denmark, 5; Sweden, 2.1; Norway, 1.5; the Netherlands, 1.5; Belgium, 0.9 cases; Russia, 46.32; Spain, 56.8; Hungary, 134.3. In England, before vaccination was made compulsory, the smallpox death rate was more than 5,000 per million population. Now it is less than 20 per million.

The mildest types of smallpox are communicable, and no age is exempt. The contagion exists in the secretions and excretions, and may live for months on clothing and furniture. The dried scales as a dust like powder are distributed everywhere in the room during convalescence. The poison is of unusual tenacity, and clings to infected localities, showing the absolute necessity of thorough disinfection after its termination.
The Wisconsin statutes forbid the attendance at school for a period of 25 days after the appearance of smallpox, of pupils and teachers who have not been successfully vaccinated, or fail to show a certificate of recent vaccination.
Except in rare cases, one attack confers immunity in the future, and as a rule the slightest attack protects for life. Epidemics are more frequent and malignant in the colder months. The incubation stage is from seven to 21 days. Smallpox epidemics are easily stamped out in their beginning stages. There is danger in the disguise being mistaken for chickenpox or one of several other diseases. The wisdom of early vaccination and of quarantine in case of outbreaks is strongly emphasized in frequent bulletins of the state board of health, as well as by practicing physicians everywhere.

Destiny was against the Dillingworth. The wind leaped and shouted up between the hills and by midnight the flames suddenly leaped up as if a restraint had been removed. Huge, red streamers flung themselves out against the black night sky, reaching half way to the zenith. Dense clouds of smoke leaped and belled to the heavens, while the roar that appalls a woodsman's heart began to sound throughout the hills.

John Dally, working like a giant, went white beneath his grime at sound of it.

"My God!" he cried hoarsely, it's goin' away from us!"

And Sandry, halted a pace away by that jory of despair, looked upon the first really great sight of his life.

"More men!" shouted the foreman hoarsely. "You Harris, go telephone to Corvallis for more men."

"It's done, Johnny," said Ma Dally, panting in the light, her sleeves rolled up from brown, capable arms.

"I sent Sletz some time back. She's callin' for all the stations between."

The valley was as light as day, illumined all up and down its length, and three horsemen were loping up its level floor. Lean, lithe men they were, clad in sober khaki, and they leaped from their horses with businesslike alacrity, dropping reins over saddle horns instead of on the ground.

Those three horses were well trained, intelligent aids, ready to stand for hours in one spot, to come at a whistle, and they wanted no dragging straps to hinder.

"We're forest rangers," announced the spokesman, a quick-eyed, steady young chap, to Sandry, "give me your men."

"Thank th' Lord!" said Dally fervently, "take command."

The newcomer talked a moment with his two companions, motioning, dividing localities, sketching a quick plan. Then he turned to the owner and his foreman.

"Where's your best timber?" he asked.

"Right over that first ridge to the east an' south—an' there's a big fire burnin' back toward it."

"Come along. I want to climb that east ridge."

In hurrying silence the three men climbed the mountain, standing at last on a narrow crest between two looking areas of flame that leaped and ate and roared in a hundred places.

The stranger questioned pointedly—how long they had been burning, how many fires there were at the start, how it had all begun, and Sandry noticed his thoroughness.

Dally gave every detail freely.

"It's ben set," he said bitterly, "an' fer th' life of me I don't know why. We'd a-had it all under by now but fer this one up here—an' th' start—an'—but, oh Lord, what's th' use? They ben springin' us faster'n we'd get 'em out."

"Got any enemies?"

"Only the Yella Pines, an' they're rich as us—off to th' south there."

The ranger studied the hills, the lie of the land, the trend of the valleys, and held up his hat to get the force and direction of the wind.

"North," said Dally, "ben whippin' up from th' backwater like hell all day. That's what's done th' business."

"Wrong," said the ranger, "north-by-northeast. Worse, for it's going to change. Then it'll go back toward that heavier timber there."

He nodded toward the East Belt and Dally groaned.

Sandry only shut his lips.

He began to see why his foreman, himself a born woodsman and familiar with the region, had so heartily turned over his command to this stranger, popped up from nowhere.

He recognized trained ability, a man of business handling his business.

They hastily returned to the valley and the ranger gathered twenty men, putting them under one of his aides.

"Go up over that ridge," he directed briefly, "and cut a forty-foot fall straight across the dip behind the fire. Go on and cut it up over the big ridge. Don't stop to fight."

As the men hurried off with cross-cut and axes, he turned into the smoke and fire, shouting terse commands, taking men from what seemed imperative tasks to put them at work in places removed from the fire—digging trenches, cutting a great pine here, a towering spruce or fir there.

"Good man," panted Sandry to his foreman as they passed with axes and dripping sacks.

"Best thing in the timber. They know th' woods an' th' fire an' th' air currents. Wish't we had a hundred of 'em. They'd save th' country 't's goin' to hell with these fires."

The one-horse railroad redeemed itself that night, for it sent a special train from the Summit with all the men from the stations along the isolated mountain line. That was no great load, for the few tiny towns lost in the wilderness had little to boast of in population, yet what they sent was good, live stuff—timbermen and fire-fighters by instinct.

Dawn came over the mountains in blood-red haze. The sun was a ball of copper shining dimly through a canopy of dun-white smoke. The wind, which had dropped a bit in the latter part of the night, came up again and gave new impetus to the flames. The roar was incessant. Here a giant pine, rich with resin, caught fire and fairly tore into the sky in its fury of burning—there a huge fir, eaten through at the base by a pack of tinder, fell with a majesty of sound that was awesome. And everywhere the men, like ants attacking some mighty task, toiled without sleep.

Dally had been up for forty-eight hours, yet he went as strongly as at the beginning, while Sandry, still far from hale, was compelled to drop for an hour's sleep. In fact, Ma did the compelling, going into the smoke and ashes after him, bringing him out bodily with a firm hand on his shoulder.

"You're spoiling me," he protested through soot-grimed lips, "and I can't afford to sleep."

"Can't afford to go down for good," said the general sternly, "no steam, no power. Food an' sleep—fuel an' water. Do you tend to your biers."

And the owner, with a wry smile, sank on a pile of gunnysacks beside the improvised railway of the upper cutting.

When he awoke it was to find himself under a light blanket of fanciful weave which belonged to Sletz. The shy, silent girl had been about him in his sleep.

When he hurried to the work he saw here and there groups of Indians. The reservation had arrived in force. But things were growing worse with every hour.

The sound of the flames was as the surf on a thousand miles of shore. The pall of smoke shut out the light of heaven, lending a lonesome, fear-giving darkness to the world—the little world of the Dillingworth valley. Long streamers of the gray moss that hung from the branches high above flamed out in fantastic shapes and banners.

The cutting at the valley's head had changed in these few hours beyond recognition, its close-packed, green fastnesses being now but blackened spikes reaching high, its splendid, straight trunks fallen like jackstraws across one another.

Fire was everywhere, in the earth and in the heavens. It heated the sweet winds to unbearable, scorching blasts. It illumined the dun dusk with dull, crimson light. It deserted the cutting and swept forward toward the north, leaving ashes and ruin, sullen brands and smoldering logs that flamed forth vindictively from time to time.

But as it went it leaped and exulted, for it rushed to the embrace of heavier timber. The wind still held by north-by-northeast, veering slightly this way and that, threatening now the reservation of the Sletzes, in whose basin there lay the finest body of standing timber in all the commonwealth of the states, now the magnificent East Belt that seemed to grip the heart of Walter Sandry like a living thing in danger.

So dawn found them on that hot, grim day in August.

The lean, young ranger was everywhere, and Sandry, in amazed appreciation, saw a trench shut off a ground-fire, and the falling of a single pine change the trend of a flood of flame that was going out of bounds.

But by twelve o'clock the wind turned and headed south. With appalling might the flood spread up the ridges, crept down into the dip and joined the slow-burning menace there.

At that the ranger fired three shots into the air which brought one of his aids running out of the smoke, panting and disheveled from fighting hand-to-hand with a growth of young spruce.

"Go telegraph for the Vancouver soldiers," he directed tersely, "this is going to beat all records."

"If we only had trails!" he rapped to Dally, "trails and telephones and men and horses! Damn a stingy government! And what fine timber it is! Going up in smoke unless we get help at once. We can't cut trails fast enough to get in and work to advantage. A straight fall through beyond this hollow would head off that branch," he waved an arm vehemently, "but I'll beat the trail cutters!"

They called all the men they could spare from the north and set them at work in the rolling smoke ahead of the fire that was beginning to eat southward.

In darkness, in a great heat that seemed to tear the lining from lungs that breathed it, without rest or food, they raced with the monster that laughed at their puny efforts, raced together, Dillingworth and Siwash and Yellow Pines, side by side, and there was neither color nor enmity nor personality between them. Sandry pulled a saw with the huge red-shirt he had once tried to drag out of the fight at the cabin in the East Belt, and Collins worked savagely with Brady of the Yellow Pines whom he had thrown into the slough after the incident of the sawed railway.

So they toiled, hanging on grimly, while the world took fire about them and it seemed as though no living thing could escape its wrath. Birds, flying across the canopy, fell fluttering to the earth, and once an antlered buck and two does shot past the line unhindered. As the fire grew in volume and area many of the woods creatures began to come down into the valleys, headed for the sea.

Once Sandry stopped to go down to the cutting for a cup of coffee, realizing Ma's warning that he must husband his strength.

Sletz ran to meet him with it and, as he took the cup a young bobcat leaped swiftly by, not a hundred yards away, its frightened ears laid back and its lean belly flattened to the ground.

"Oh!" cried the girl, suddenly realizing what it meant, "oh, they are burning up there! They don't know where to go!"

And Sandry saw tears fill her dark eyes and roll unheeded down her cheeks.

"Soft," he mused as he hurried back into the roaring timber, "all soft! She is a plant root, fit for adoration and service and tenderness."

He was soon to know her for iron and a savagery past all comprehension, but he had no time to think for a long file of olive-drab was coming up the valley on the double-quick—the Vancouver soldiers brought by a special train, rushed to the ranger's call in a matter of hours.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 18, 1875.—This morning Mr. Buller, living near Monterey who is in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, got up at the usual hour to make the fire, and after doing so called his wife, but hearing no answer went to the bed, and to his surprise and horror found her cold in death. From the condition of her body it was evident that she had died during the night, and so quietly that her husband knew nothing of it. She retired the night previous in usual good health, which adds mystery to her sudden death. Undoubtedly she died of heart disease.

For Bronchitis, Coughs, Bronchial Asthma and Whooping Cough

Cheapest Remedy Made at Home—128 Teaspoonful for 25 Cents.

The first 300 persons calling at Smith's Pharmacy will be entitled to a regular 50c bottle of Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant for half price (25c) by presenting the coupon below, properly signed. With a view to giving those who have not yet used this new excellent remedy an opportunity of trying it, in the treatment of Bronchial affections, including Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, Severe Coughs, Colds and Hoarseness, to prove its merits, these druggists are willing to allow the public the profit which they would otherwise make and the proprietor is willing to lose money on the same, so as to give them an opportunity of trying it, at partially their expense, knowing it will be found the best medicine ever used by anyone.

Even though not in need of a Cough or Cold Medicine at the present time, it will pay to buy now, as some such medicine is sure to be required before the winter is over, but this remedy cannot be obtained at less than full price again. Besides making this reduction, these druggists guarantee this remedy just the same as Dr. Schiffmann's famous Asthmador, and will return the money in every single instance if it does not give perfect satisfaction and even more—if it is not found the best remedy ever used for any of the above complaints.

This excellent remedy is sufficiently concentrated so that 50 cents' worth, when mixed at home with simply one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of water (according to printed directions) makes a whole family supply (128 teaspoonful) while bottles of the old, regular, ready-made kinds, of doubtful merit, and without a guarantee, usually average 20 to 32 teaspoonful.

It is prepared from strictly harmless plants, contains absolutely no chloroform, opium, morphine or any narcotic or injurious drugs which do most common remedies, and can therefore be given to children with perfect safety. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. Besides absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy whatever, on the guarantee of the above, well-known, reliable druggists who will refund you 25c if it is not found the best remedy ever used.

If a neighbor or friend could be induced to divide and pay for half the quantity, the cost would thus only be about 12c to each.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a cough, don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heat the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heats the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse, tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in quinine, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CLAIM CHILD LABOR POLICY IS MENACED BY RECENT OPINION

Attorney General Asks Supreme Court to Reverse Its Ruling on Compensation Act.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—In a brief filed today by Attorney General Walter C. Owen, the supreme court is asked to reverse itself. Last month the court, in an opinion written by Justice Marshall, in the case of Clarence Foth, a minor, against a Kenosha manufacturer, construed certain words in the workmen's compensation act in such a way as to seriously hamper the state in enforcing its well-known policy of restricting child labor and the industrial exploitation of minors. The industrial commission, which administers the child labor laws and the workmen's compensation law, views the court's recent opinion with such grave foreboding that it requested the attorney general to ask a rehearing of the case. The resulting brief not only asks the court to reverse its decision, but also reviews the history of child labor prohibition in Wisconsin and the long struggle between the state as the conservator of children, and the "money-minded employers" who put cash profits before life and limb and vigorous health of the state's future citizens.

Boy Crippled for Life.
In the Kenosha case which the court is asked to re-open, a boy was crippled for life through an accident while he was employed at a factory. The boy was prohibited by law for one of his age. In similar cases the industrial commission always has refused to take jurisdiction under the compensation law, thus leaving the injured party free to invoke his common law rights in an action for damages before a court and jury. In several parallel cases juries have awarded large verdicts when confronted by a boy crippled for life because of an industrial accident suffered while unlawfully employed. The attitude of the commission and of the supreme court brought clearly to the employers' attention the expensive hazard of employing children illegally. In the instant case, however, the supreme court placed a new construction upon a few words in the compensation act and held, in effect, that the compensation act applied whenever a child was injured in an industrial accident. The extreme result of this decision would be that an employer might assign a mere child to perform an exceedingly hazardous piece of work instead of assigning a grown man to the job. If the child were killed, the employer would be liable for damages. On the other hand, when a man with wife and children is killed, the employer is called upon to pay full compensation of $3,000 or less to the dependents. Thus a provision which was intended to protect children from dangerous employments.

Cites Legislative Intent.
The attorney general's brief states that the legislature obviously intended to assist in the restriction of child labor and the enforcement of law by making it possible for injured minors to claim damages in an action before a jury. In the other part of the legislative intent, the brief relates that the 1915 legislature refused to pass a bill which sought to accomplish exactly the thing now accomplished in the court's opinion in the Kenosha case. In showing the supreme court the attitude of Wisconsin on the exploitation of children by industry, the attorney general says: "This state has for several years taken an aggressive and aggressive position in stamping out the evils of child labor. The central idea of this policy of legislation has been and is that the child and his childhood shall not be sacrificed to the greed of industry. To accomplish this idea it has been found necessary to make the employment of children in hazardous or unwholesome occupations criminal, and to subject the employer to fines and penalties. Yet we know that in spite of these efforts on the part of the state the evil is not being eradicated. The legislature has been and is daily weighing the profits of child labor against the liability to penalty under these statutes, in case they are detected in the violation of the law. The attorney general argues that the legislature, in passing the compensation act, included additional penalties for the 'money-minded employers of child labor who were deterred by the mere prohibition and penalties of the statutes but who pursued the policy of weighing the profits of child labor over and against the penalties of the statutes and the law of the state. This aid in the state's administration of these laws, the court's decision in this case destroys." In asking the court to reconsider its decision the attorney general says that the court will make a new interpretation of the legislature's language, "if the court will, for the moment, change its viewpoint from one of hindrance to one of foresight in viewing this statute."

REPORT OF FIRE LOSSES IN STATE LAST MONTH

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—Reports received by the state fire marshal department show that the fire losses for the month of October, 1915, were $60 above the losses reported in October, 1914. The October losses this year were $361,129, while in 1914 they were $361,061. The number of fires this year was 213; in October, 1914, they numbered 243. The totals for September, 1915, were $357,000.

The biggest single loss in October this year was at a large mill in Racine county, when a spark from a smokestack caused a lumber yard loss of $37,500, on October 26. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

Milwaukee county led in the number of fires, a total of 38, but the total loss was but $13,495. Other county losses, in order of size were: Kauwaunoo, 2 fires, $15,800; Waupesa, 7 fires, $14,415; Brown, 10 fires, $14,405; Waupesa, 6 fires, $14,300; Portage, 7 fires, $12,595; Waushara, 9 fires, $11,190; Racine, 4 fires, $10,725; Polk, 6 fires, $10,300.

The approach of colder weather has increased the number of fires from defective heating arrangements. Defective chimneys caused 18 fires at a loss of $22,490. Smoke from a near wood caused 11, with a loss of $13,540. Gas fires, with a loss of $14,645, were credited to incendiaries. Lightning was the cause of 13 fires, at a total loss of $12,475. Fires from unknown causes were 31, and the loss $54,570.

WRECKAGE OF BATTLE FIELD IS TERRIBLE

Description of Havoc Spread on Battlefield of Champagne After Three Weeks Fighting.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Châlons, France, Nov. 18.—There was still wreckage enough remaining on the battlefield of Champagne three weeks after the battle was fought to give some idea of the havoc of destruction it was fresh after the advance. Within a space fifteen miles in length by one to three in breadth at least a million men were engaged on both sides; twenty-five thousand prisoners were taken; and a million shells were fired for every man engaged was fired.

That sheet of preparatory shell fire which had descended upon fifteen miles of German front trenches meant a swath of slaughter to start with. For three days, night and day, this bombardment continued. According to the accounts of German prisoners, they saw the German trenches of their subterranean chambers under their crumbling parapets. A wall of artillery fire back of the trenches kept the supplies from reaching them. In front of the trenches the continued crash of shrapnel blasts was cutting the barbed wire. For months the French had been accumulating ammunition which they poured out from every calibre of gun.

This shell fire not only killed and wounded Germans; not only made the most elaborate trenches into dust heaps, but littered the field with smashed German caissons, transport wagons, equipment and all the impediments of an army. There was peace in the German trenches for the first time in three days as the wave of French infantry rushed for the German trenches. Then the French guns stopped firing, lest they kill their own men. The wave had not more than two hundred yards to go. Estimate the time that it takes the average man to run the distance you have the time it took the French soldiers to reach the wreckage which had been the German trenches and grapple with any survivors in the doughts. In some places the wave swept on beyond the trench like the tide running up an inlet. The Germans between such forces were caught in pairs of pliers. This accounted for the prisoners who were taken in batches. They were surrounded by infantry with no way of retreat open to them.

"Only the little things now remain," said a French soldier who was saluting the ruins of the German retreat of La Poche—"The Enckel" in the famous Trou Briet sector. "At the start, of course, we buried the dead and gathered up the broken fragments which had been destroyed by our gunfire."

The town of Ypres in the British lines probably remains the most colossal example of shell-fire. Ypres was a town. It was not built to withstand the bombardment of a modern war. It was a town of peace. In the famous Trou Briet sector, "At the start, of course, we buried the dead and gathered up the broken fragments which had been destroyed by our gunfire."

It was a town of peace. In the famous Trou Briet sector, "At the start, of course, we buried the dead and gathered up the broken fragments which had been destroyed by our gunfire."

"It was easy, monsieur," said a soldier "easier than some much simpler fortifications which we found later. The shells had not fallen so thickly. We rushed in and looked around—for somebody to fight with. But there was no one. For the most part there was nothing but ruins. The houses were all there were men lying about trying to apply bandages and a few stunned, unharmed. What could they do but yield. Those who sought refuge down that left a crater at least one hundred feet in depth and one hundred feet in width. Any Germans who survived were in the pall of dust from it as the French infantry charged. The trenches were where the barbed wire had been destroyed by guns which were given this part of the work to do. In ten minutes from the time that the French infantry left their trenches they were in full possession of La Poche.

From the highest point of the ruins of the front line of German trenches which had been so elaborately dug and were broken, half filled ditches as the result of that terrific concentration of gunfire, and the same thing was to be seen in the region of Louvain where the British guns had wrought the same kind of havoc.

GERMANS REACH OUT FOR RAW MATERIALS

Open up Route to Asia Minor to Tap Wealth of Mines and Agriculture.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—With the conquest and opening up of the Anatolian line, the Orient railway between Belgrade and Sofia by the Teutonic and Bulgarian allies, a vast storehouse rich in much-needed raw materials has been made accessible to the supply of the hard-pressed Central Powers. Probably, the most important feature of this accomplishment is the bringing of the Austro-Hungarian and German nations into contact with the vast storehouse of raw materials and products of agriculture in abundance, though the control of the Orient railway, also, enables the transportation of the raw materials and products of agriculture to the Central Powers. German troops to territories threateningly near the Suez Canal. A sketch of the stores of Asia Minor, or Anatolia, upon which the Germans will now be able to draw is contained in a bulletin just issued by the National Geographic Society. The bulletin reads:

"The mineral and agricultural wealth of Turkey-in-Asia is vast. This wealth, however, is largely of the potential kind, for, except in limited areas, agriculture is carried on according to primitive methods, while, for the most part, the mineral stores have been untouched. Among the minerals known to exist in considerable quantities are iron, copper, nickel, lead, manganese, silver, sulphur, coal, asphalt, and all the products of the earth, gold, kaolin, zinc, alum, asbestos, rock-salt, boracic, chrome, and mercury. Of these resources, the copper stores will, likely, be the most prized by the Germans, though little has been done under Turkish administration toward exploiting the copper. The reserves of Anatolian copper are said to be large. Wheat, corn and rice are grown in large quantities in Asia Minor. In normal times, much of the surplus barley has been exported to Great Britain, where it has been used for brewing. There is a considerable surplus of wheat, which should relieve the reported meal scarcity in the mills of the Central Powers. The west coast of Asia Minor is noted for the fruits of wheat, which, in the Mediterranean climate, here are grown an important part of the world's raisin crop. Olives and figs, also, thrive along the Aegean coast. Where hot summers prevail over the northern Anatolia, some of the finest Turkish tobacco is raised, which, in all likelihood, is now a rare luxury among German smokers. A sort of tobacco is grown in Germany, a pale, insipid, unfragrant leaf, which bears little resemblance to the rich tobacco of America, Turkey and the East Indies. Great quantities of hazelnuts are among the exports of this area, and cotton, another staple of the Germans, are said to be grown in large quantities in the districts of Kassa and Aidin in the west, on the Cilician plain in the southeast.

"The principal exports of Asia Minor are raisins, tobacco, figs, barley, liquorice, wool, hides, cotton and skins. Owing to the backward organization of the country it is difficult to assign any values to the annual exports of these articles, which would be worth considering. The leading exports of Syria include lemons, oranges, sesame, soap, silk, honey, and liquorice, while Mesopotamian exports large shipments of dates, wool, barley, wheat and opium. Yemen, in Arabia, the latter is mostly a desert, exports the famed Mocha coffee. The fee is said to be very scarce in Germany now. Dates are about the only export from Arabia of any importance.

"The climate of Syria is of the extreme Mediterranean type, and most of the soil is fertile. In great part, however, it remains uncultivated. Silk worms are raised in many parts of the land, and before the war's outbreak, most of the silk was sent out to France. Cotton is raised in some parts of the land, and before the war's outbreak, most of the silk was sent out to France. GERMANY'S NEED OF COTTON PROMPTS DRIVE INTO SERBIA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Some idea of the importance of the most recent sources of cotton supply to the Central Powers by their conquest of the Serbian link of the Orient railway is given by a survey of the cotton producing areas of the world, which shows how completely Austro-Hungary and Germany were shut off from the raw cotton market. The United States, of course, is the world's greatest producer of cotton. It is the American product which regulates the cotton markets of the world. India, Egypt and Brazil are the next most important places for the production of this commodity. The Indian, Egyptian and Brazilian cotton markets are largely dominated by Great Britain, which, since the disposition of the American crop, consumes almost its entire production at home. With no contiguous cotton producing areas, with ports blocked, and with the leading cotton markets of the world largely in the control of the English, the exclusion of Germany from the enjoyment of this most important product was well nigh complete. Thus, the drive through the Balkans toward Anatolia, Syria and Egypt may well have had cotton written in capital letters as the goal to be achieved.

While the cotton production of Anatolia, Syria and Mesopotamia is unimportant in the world's commerce of this article, it is, nevertheless, of sufficient bulk to prove a great relief for the war necessities of the Central Powers. Turkish cotton is not of such good quality as that grown in the United States, Egypt and India. For war purposes, however, it is satisfactory. Beyond the Suez Canal, Delta and a part of middle Egypt there is a more important supply of cotton of high quality, while to the eastward over Persia lie the large cotton producing areas of India. From both of these sources, though cut off by war, the Central Powers may now be able to secure certain importations.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

Amsterdam, Nov. 18.—The Dutch newspapers have recently been turning a searchlight on the frontier traffic which is alleged to be furnishing Germany with many commodities which she needs. According to the Telegram, there is little actual violation of the letter of the Dutch regulations regarding contraband, but there is a great deal of skillful evasion which is proving very profitable to the Dutch trader.

NEWSPAPERS IN HOLLAND SHOW FRONTIER TRAFFIC

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Amsterdam, Nov. 18.—The Dutch newspapers have recently been turning a searchlight on the frontier traffic which is alleged to be furnishing Germany with many commodities which she needs. According to the Telegram, there is little actual violation of the letter of the Dutch regulations regarding contraband, but there is a great deal of skillful evasion which is proving very profitable to the Dutch trader.

gier, but "margarine" and "soap" are in the list of allowed exports. A cartoon in the Telegram shows an endless train of wagons winding along a country road towards the frontier, each wagon loaded with cases labeled "Margarine" and "soap," and a note underneath the picture reads "Fats and oils are contraband, but margarine and soap are all right, so here we go!"

A correspondent writing from Bergen-op-Zoom, which is one of the most convenient points for export to Germany, says: "Each freight train which comes in seems to contain a greater or smaller number of cases of so-called margarine. The platform is littered with them, the storeroom is piled almost to the ceiling. Outside, the station yard is thronged with vehicles. I counted thirty-one carts, five handcars, several dogcarts and ninety men with bicycles. The whole troop is commonly referred to by residents of Bergen as 'the smugglers.'"

"As rapidly as possible the cases are hustled out from the station and immediately the procession starts for the frontier. There are three roads from Bergen across the frontier, but the leniency of the customs officials seems to vary considerably at the three points, and one road is followed by the majority of the margarine-laden wagons.

DO THIS FIRST—YOU!

You know, and every physician knows, that when any sickness has passed, whether it be throat trouble, organic disturbances, contagious diseases, or even a severe cold, a relapse is feared, because sickness robs the system of Nature's resistance and leaves it subject to lingering germs. Drugs never build up a worn-out body—only food can do that, and the first thing to take after any sickness is the concentrated, blood-making oil, food in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the tissues, benefits the blood and strengthens both lungs and throat. Physicians prescribe Scott's Emulsion after sickness. Nurses everywhere advocate it. Scott's is pure medicinal food, without alcohol or drugs.

DESCRIBES RUINED CITY AFTER BATTLE

Correspondent Tells of Battlefield After Terrible, Seething Death Struggle.

(By Carl W. Ackerman.)
Meisjagola, near Vilna, Russia, Oct. 27.—Today is Sunday and we have motored out to the valley of Meisjagola, where the battle for Vilna was fought. Our way lay through abandoned trenches and barbed wire entanglements, dug or stretched through cemeteries, cabbage patches and potato fields.

Entering the ruins of Meisjagola, we obtained the first real view of the battlefield, and in its center the dilapidated skeleton of what in peace time was a church. It was all so quiet. One could hardly realize that from the second to the eleventh of September, 45,000 of the Russian guard and the German landsturm were locked in this 3-mile valley, in a seething death-struggle. It was but one of the terrible, decisive engagements of this war about which the public has scarcely heard.

This battle was the beginning of the fall of Vilna, the first city the Czar tried to save when he took personal command of his army. Vilna was a beautiful, modern city about the size of Indianapolis, a terminal on the main rail line to Petrograd. The Czar entrenched 500,000 troops about the city, including 3 divisions of armoured men at Meisjagola and for nine days the crash and roar of bedlam reigned in the Russian's hopeless task of checking the Teutons' advance. The night of the eleventh the Germans stormed an entanglement and the trench back of it delivered heavy flank attacks and were commanders of the whole position, had 20,000 prisoners and sealed Vilna's fate.

We stopped before the church. Ten paces brought us to an old graveyard in which the storm of shells had played up the skeletons of those long dead and scattered them about, stark and white, like an army of fallen ghosts lying in the wake of battle, grinning at the daylight. The green sod of the surrounding fields was strewn with the remnants of shells which had exploded in the air and rained their devilish iron and fire on the struggling men. The white church walls were splashed with red.

We returned to the church. Penants were silently passing in and out. We lifted our hats and tip-toed inside. The floor, save for narrow passages to the altar, was buried in straw. The roof was torn to pieces and more than one shell had exploded inside, for pictures, statues of Christ, altars, candle sticks and benches were smashed and torn. Before the unrecognizable altar, knelt a woman and a girl, heads bowed, sobbing. A big, six-foot, fur-clad peasant came in and knelt in the straw halfway down the aisle. An old woman who had been motionless beside the splintered pulpit, began crawling around and around it. Save for the staccato flapping of a loose sheet of tin on the steeple roof as the gusty wind swept over it, this house of God and the battlefield about, were silent.

We sauntered through the town, past the black piles of burned homes, and out into the Russian trenches. These, dug slightly below the crest of the hill, were architecturally so perfect that they blended into the landscape 300 feet away. These trenches commanded the valley, across which, on the forest's fringe, were the German trenches. The green field between were peppered with the black spots that artillery fire makes. The tops of the Russian trenches, which are built of heavy logs and cement blocks covered with five and six layers of green sod. Once I looked down. A dead Russian stared at me.

Scattered everywhere were caps, coats, shoes, food, bottles and personal effects. Thused rifle ammunition lay like seed sown on a new field. Here and there were 15 and 21 centimeter shells, unexploded, still hugging their death-dealing power. Bits of white paper bearing firing line reports that had been telephoned to the artillery positions, scattered crazily about the desolate field in the breeze. Everywhere were single crosses, some marked with cross, and helmet others barren.

We walked to the edge of the thick woods, then back to the first line German position. Torn Russian and German uniforms, blood-stained knives, bayonets, guns, belts, helmets, caps, overcoats and graves were strange flowers in this weird garden that death grew in the green, cupped valley. Twice here and the Russian emergency trenches on the far slope.

From among the Russian and German lying there side by side in death, I picked up a German belt buckle bearing the inscription: "God With Us." The Russian bibles scattered about were so numerous as to be uncountable. Where the field post-master had arrived during the heavy fighting, letters and packages from home whitened the ground. On a little mound I found a letter, addressed in a feminine hand, from Dresden—a letter from home, unopened, for the soldier beneath the mound. I stared at the mound and the letter for a long time. Then I looked up. The sun was shining away across the valley. And the valley was silent.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 18.—Will Quinn was married on Wednesday, Nov. 17, to Miss O'Keefe of Indianapolis. They returned to Chicago on Thursday to join in a family reunion to be held there. Among those present were Mrs. J. D. Peterson and daughter, Margaret, of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. Kate Nickerson of Madison, and son, Milo, of Waunakee. Will Quinn is the son of Mrs. Margaret Quinn and spent his younger days in this city. He has been employed by the Federal gas company of Chicago for several years. The young couple will be at home on the north side after January 1.

Will Harris is here from Springfield.

Evansville News

MAYOR PLACES MARKER ON OLD TAVERN SITE.

Evansville, Nov. 18.—Mayor Byron Campbell, placed a 100-pound cement marker locating the site of the old ball tavern, three miles east of this city yesterday.

This tavern was owned by Joseph Osburn in 1840 and was used for a hotel or tavern as it was called in those days.

It derived its name from a wooden ball 12 inches in diameter which Mr. Osburn suspended from the limb of a tree in front of the hotel.

At that time this tavern was on the old territorial road running between Janesville and Madison, a stage line being maintained on that route at that time and the place served as a stage station for all points west to Milwaukee.

Up to 1845, the elections for this district, which was much larger than at present and extended to Rock river, were held there.

There are but four living settlers who remember the exact location of this historic tavern, and old landmark.

Mayor Campbell being one of them.

Mr. Campbell was one of the earliest settlers in this part of the country, coming here from La Porte, Indiana with his father, Wm. Campbell in 1838, and was the first settler in Rock Prairie and near the present town of Johnstown.

In 1844 he moved to the farm now known as the E. D. Barnard farm, four miles east of this city.

The marker which is sunk several feet in the ground so that it can never be misplaced, bears the inscription, "Site of the old Ball Tavern."

Orrin Butts of Africa was a business visitor here Wednesday.

Levi Sperry was a Janesville business visitor yesterday.

The White-water boys have cleaned up the conference teams in the southern division and will fight hard to retain the championship of the state.

These two teams played last year at River Falls, Whitewater winning by a score of 13 to 0.

Some trouble over the referee was able to call off the game, but finally Hammonson of Janesville was decided upon.

The windows of the down town district are being decorated with the red and white of the north and the royal purple of the local school.

The business places will close from 2 to 4:30 tomorrow to let those who wish to attend the game go.

MAYOR PLACES MARKER ON OLD TAVERN SITE.

Evansville, Nov. 18.—Mayor Byron Campbell, placed a 100-pound cement marker locating the site of the old ball tavern, three miles east of this city yesterday.

This tavern was owned by Joseph Osburn in 1840 and was used for a hotel or tavern as it was called in those days.

It derived its name from a wooden ball 12 inches in diameter which Mr. Osburn suspended from the limb of a tree in front of the hotel.

At that time this tavern was on the old territorial road running between Janesville and Madison, a stage line being maintained on that route at that time and the place served as a stage station for all points west to Milwaukee.

Up to 1845, the elections for this district, which was much larger than at present and extended to Rock river, were held there.

There are but four living settlers who remember the exact location of this historic tavern, and old landmark.

Mayor Campbell being one of them.

Mr. Campbell was one of the earliest settlers in this part of the country, coming here from La Porte, Indiana with his father, Wm. Campbell in 1838, and was the first settler in Rock Prairie and near the present town of Johnstown.

In 1844 he moved to the farm now known as the E. D. Barnard farm, four miles east of this city.

The marker which is sunk several feet in the ground so that it can never be misplaced, bears the inscription, "Site of the old Ball Tavern."

Orrin Butts of Africa was a business visitor here Wednesday.

Levi Sperry was a Janesville business visitor yesterday.

Reports that had been telephoned to the artillery positions, scattered crazily about the desolate field in the breeze.

Everywhere were single crosses, some marked with cross, and helmet others barren.

We walked to the edge of the thick woods, then back to the first line German position.

Torn Russian and German uniforms, blood-stained knives, bayonets, guns, belts, helmets, caps, overcoats and graves were strange flowers in this weird garden that death grew in the green, cupped valley.

Twice here and the Russian emergency trenches on the far slope.

From among the Russian and German lying there side by side in death, I picked up a German belt buckle bearing the inscription: "God With Us."

The Russian bibles scattered about were so numerous as to be uncountable.

Where the field post-master had arrived during the heavy fighting, letters and packages from home whitened the ground.

On a little mound I found a letter, addressed in a feminine hand, from Dresden—a letter from home, unopened, for the soldier beneath the mound.

I stared at the mound and the letter for a long time. Then I looked up.

The sun was shining away across the valley. And the valley was silent.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 18.—Will Quinn was married on Wednesday, Nov. 17, to Miss O'Keefe of Indianapolis.

They returned to Chicago on Thursday to join in a family reunion to be held there.

Among those present were Mrs. J. D. Peterson and daughter, Margaret, of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. Kate Nickerson of Madison, and son, Milo, of Waunakee.

Will Quinn is the son of Mrs. Margaret Quinn and spent his younger days in this city.

He has been employed by the Federal gas company of Chicago for several years.

The young couple will be at home on the north side after January 1.

Will Harris is here from Springfield.

There was a meeting of the Parent-

Teachers' Association yesterday afternoon at the high school building.

The interest in the meetings is increasing and a goodly number listened to the excellent program.

The program of musical selections and all joined in singing songs for the occasion, entitled, "A Song for Neighborhood."

Mrs. Minnie Hayward of Evansville then gave a very excellent address on "The Challenge of Childhood."

She outlined the work of the parent in connection with the pupil and gave many helpful suggestions to the mothers.

Mrs. Normal and an organizer of the Mothers' Association.

Lewis Krantz returned last evening to his home in Sexton, Iowa, after a short visit at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Tassin.

Miss Lillian Butler goes to Milwaukee today for an operation on her tonsils.

The championship football game of Normal schools will be played here Friday afternoon at two o'clock at Hamilton field.

The River Falls team having won the northern championship will play the local team.

Large scores in their games and have demonstrated that they are of championship caliber.

It is quite hard to get line on the team, but are quoted as being heavy and fast.

TWO DAYS LEFT OF THE GREAT SALE OF HARDWARE OF THE McNAMARA HARDWARE STOCK ORDERED BY THE COURT

Just two days remain for the people to take advantage of the greatest sale ever held in Rock county, as the sale positively closes Saturday night, November 20th, just as we have advertised. There are immense bargains still to be had, so hurry and save dollars while you can. We have simply "shot to pieces" the price of every article in the stock, cut and slashed right and left. It must all go, and to accomplish what we have set out to do, we are making the biggest slam-bang, cut-to-the-quick ending on prices ever attempted by us on such high-grade goods. Get in with the crowds--we have help enough to wait on all, with a special extra force on Saturday.

Ice Cream Freezers

There are still a couple of dozen of the Alaska Freezers left that we will clean up at prices so infernally low that you cannot help but carry them away. Price no object at all. Two days left to do it in.

Attention, Fishermen!

Just come in and "make a cast" at the big line of fishing tackle, rods, reels, etc. We will reel off the prices to you in a manner that will cause you all joy. Just want to get rid of it, that's all. Two days left.

Sporting Goods

To all the pugilistically inclined we have a big line of boxing gloves to offer. We will put the gloves on with you and let you knock us out on the price. Punching Bags will go the same way. All cut to pieces in this two-day windup sale.
